TUITION MANAGEMENT

The National Education Alliance and Eddcor Partner to Offer Educational Savings

TROY, MI – February 7, 2013– The National Education Alliance and Eddcor are pleased to announce that they have joined forces to offer clients and members the ability to stretch their tuition dollars even further.

Eddcor clients will benefit from the partnership with National Education Alliance, as counseling services will now become available to Eddcor's extensive client base. The National Education Alliance Counseling Center will guide Eddcor client employees towards degree completion, while saving them both time and money. This support allows students to explore how the college credit they have earned in the past could apply to the offered degrees at hundreds of educational institutions across the nation.

National Education Alliance will benefit from the partnership with Eddcor, as they will be able to enjoy discounts offered through Eddcor's expansive School Network. Eddcor's School Network is a collaboration of regionally accredited colleges and universities across the United States. Depending on the needs of an individual, discounts can save clients and customers thousands of dollars annually.

Adrienne L. Way, CEO and President of Eddcor said, "The partnership between National Education Alliance and Eddcor enhances our world class education services, and provides resources to help our customers become smarter consumers when it comes to their educational future. Providing counseling opportunities for students prior to enrollment, as well as throughout their academic career, gives them the ability to stretch their tuition dollars as far as possible."

"The partnership between the National Education Alliance and Eddcor is a perfect fit. Both companies strive to help students stretch tuition dollars. The savings opportunities from both companies extended out to Eddcor clients and National Education Alliance members can assist millions of people," stated Shara Wright, President of the National Education Alliance.

The recently formed relationship between both organizations is a win-win, as Eddcor's School Network and the National Education Alliance membership expands cost savings opportunities, and students will have easier access to these savings opportunities both before and during their academic careers. ■
